THE END OF THINGS. BEY, DR. BANKIN'S SERMON READ AT THE

CONGRECTIONAL CHURCH. At the Congregational church yesterday, as Dr. Rrnkin was still unable to occupy the pulpit, a sermon prepared by him the Sunday previous was read. It had a peculiarly mournful interest, as the paster had been sick for some time, and it would be his last sermon in that church until his return in the autumn. His text was Psalm lxxii, 20, "The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended." The sermon began: "It is a remarkable fact that artists sometimes seem to have a pre-intimation of what will be the last product of their genius." The preacher then cited the intimation of what will be the last product of their genius." The preacher then cited the last works of Hogarth and of Mozart—"The End of Things." of the painter, and the "Requiem" of the musician.

Continuing, he said: "The subject I want to discuss is, "The End of Things."

"I call your attention to the fact that all earthly things must come to an end. And this is especially true of mankind. The dead things we build outlive the living things we are. The fact that outlive the living things we are. The fact that outlive the living things. we are. The fact that earthly things must come to an end is a very commonplace one to state, to be spectator of, but not to experience God has made every day a kind of epitome, a kind of pocket edition of life. Three hun-dred and sixty-five times during the let year, since last summer's vacation, has He reminded us, by the falling of evening shadows, by obliging us to lay nside our work, fluished or unfluished, and to take the posture and the very image of death, that there comes to us all a nightfall which has no earthly morning, a time when we shall rest from our labors, and our works shall fol-low us when we shall come to the end. The fact that all earthly things must come to an end, that we shall have sungour last hymn and offered our last prayer; this is one of the great facts of our nature and our destiny, solemnizes life. It dignities our being, makes tender and holy our relations. I do not care what our obligations or ties to other people; whether we are beneath them or above them; wiser or more ignorant; there is nothing more significant in these obliga-tions and ties than that they are temporary; that they must cease and cease forever. Though earthly things come to an end their influence is permanent, is endless. A man writes a book. He dies or changes his mind. But book. He dies or changes his mind. But the book goes on forever. There is nothing lighter than a word. It is but articulate breath—a yes, a no. But that articulate breath, having been once spoken, will wing its flight until there is no ear to hear it. There is no folly like the folly of men who undertake to measure the penalty of wrongdoing by the injury done. The injury done is beyond finite computation. Why should not the penalty be?" After dwelling upon the endless realty be?" After dwelling upon the endless re-sults of earthly being the pastor said: "God's goodness has been put into laws. They are all uniform. They are expressed in this single form, 'whatsoever a man soweth that shall be also reap.' It is a law written on every de-partment of our being, illustrated in every stage of our lives. We go on to be endl-saly what we are when life is ended."

CHRIST ALL IN ALL. SERMON OF REV. W. H. KUHNS AT ST.

PAUL'S ENGLISH LUTHERAN CRURCH. At St. Paul's English Lutheran church yesterday Rev. W. H. Kuhns preached from Colossians, third chapter, eleventh verse, Christ is all and in all as respects man. The latter was lost and ruined in every way by the fall. He could not save himself. It required God to do for man what man could not do for himself. Christ therefore suffered for man that man might live. Christ was not a carpenter for nothing. He made the indder upon which angels of mercy ascend and descend in missions of love to man. For man's final salvation He offers but one way, and there is no escape from evil but through Him Christ is all and in all throughout the Sacral Scriptures. All truth comes and harmonizes in, through, and by Him like light in a focus, in, through, and by Him like light in a focus. Christ is revealed in the new dispensation as his coming was heraided in and by the old, and the references to Him in the Old Testi ment are only types of Himas revealed in the New. CHRISTIANITY IN CHINA. INTERESTING MISSIONARY MEETING AT THE UNION CHAPEL LAST NIGHT.

The missionary society of the Union chape', Twentieth street, between H and I streets northwest, held an interesting meeting last night. The exercises consisted of statements by the officers of the society, giving statistics of the work. Twelve little children sang missionary songs and recited verses, after which the speaker of the evaning, Mrs. Sites, a returned missionary from Chiuz, who is a lady with a pleasant, matronly face and good address, delivered an interesting address. Mrs. Sites stated that the work was progressing finely in the land of the Celestials. The church, she said, is gaining converts every day in the far off land, and in a few years the small number of churches there will be largely increased. Mis. Sites recited some very interesting incidents which occured during her sojourn in China, and was warm applauded. Mrs. Hartsook, the wife of the applauded. Ars. Hameline church, made a short pastor of the Hameline church, made a short address, touching upon the reports forwarded by the missionaries in different countries. by the missionaries in different countries. The money robbery in Georgetown still continues to be the subject of conversation. The detectives here discovered nothing, although they are dilligently at work on it. The robbery seems to have been systematically arranged, for in less than half an hour after the family had left the house the thieves had entered and departed with their plunder. There have been two previous attempts to rob Mr. Prud'homme, but the thieves were frightened off by members of the family. The total amount of the stolen property was $7,372.50. It consisted of four registered bonds of $1,000 each, one registered bond of $100, one coupon bond of $1,000, and one of $500, two District of Columbia coupon bonds of $500 wash, one diamend branches, one way $7,372.50. Fiying Over to Spend More Time Under-The Second of the Luray Trips.

Last Wednesday's excursion to Luray was another pronounced success, the entire party returning to the city enthusiastic over the manner in which the day had been spent. The personal care bestowed by the B. & O. officials who go in charge of the excursions is an especial feature of these trips, and one which is enjoyed to the utmost. Under the complete management not only on the trains, but within the caverns, ladies may particlpate in the excursion without gentlemen attendants, the system of reserving seats doing away with all crowding in securing place in the cars. The charts opened, as they are, at all times for the reserving of seats enables all who desire to make their own choice as to location. Another very quick rnn was made on the return trip Wednesday, the train arriving in Washington at 8:30 and Baltimore 9:30. Nearly a half hour more than the schedule time was given at Luray, and the day was simply incomparably fine. The run homoward was as smooth as silk, the train several times exceeding a mile a minute rate without indicating by joiting or swaying a speed of half that momentum. The track of the Baltimore and Ohio is in superb shape, and those who said that the schedule of single day trips to Luray, as advertised by the Bal-timore and Ohio, could not be made, have now nothing to say. In every particular the company has done more than it advertised. This week's excursion promises to be a large one, and those who contemplate going should secure their seats without delay, as the sale will stop when the number reaches the prescribed figures.

The Lawyers and Jurors' Game of Base Ball-Boat Races Saturday-Notes.

Some time ago the young lawyers of Washington challenged the members of the grand jury to play a game of base ball for the benefit of the policemen who were recently dis charged from the force for disability. Or Saturday the game was played, and it afforded more amusement to the spectators than a half a dozen comedies. All the grand jurors save two failed to come to time, so the lawyers were compelled to play a picked nine, upon which Wise, of the Nationals, played as catcher. After borrowing a penny from one of the spectators with which to toes up for innings, the game began with up for innings, the game began with Wright at the bat. Unlike his Boston base ball namesake, he found it difficult to strike the ball. He at last thumped it, however, and it fell into the second baseman's hands. Mr. Walter then went up to the homeplate and looked dubiously at the pitcher. Harris delivered the ball and after it was in Wise's hands Walter. ball, and after it was in Wise's hands Walter struck at the atmosphere with energy. He repeated this performance three times, and then started on a wild or tortuous scramble to first base. When he reached the bag he was surprised to learn that he was out. Charlie Mocze then batted wildly at a ball, Charlie Mocre then batted wildly at a ball, and accidentally struck it. He was put out amid thunders of applause. When the lawyers went out in the field they presented a lovely appearance. Their red stockings, belts, and caps, with their white trousers and crushed strawberry shill made them look exceedingly well. The laties in the grand stand beam: I approving smiles upon them and as intilly waved handkerchiels to them. The picked nine were not uniformed. The first man who went to the last for the picked nine was L'pscomb. Mr. Moore looked at him and pitched the ball directly at his head. Mr. Lipscomb dodg: 1, and Mr. Moore claimed that in ducking his head the batter had taken an unfair advantage of him. This was decided to be a mistake, and the game continued. All through the game the spectators were in a continuous fit of langhter. The desperate efforts of the lawyer's to fall over their feature of the game was the unpiring of Deputy Marshal C. Ridgely MacBiatr. He was an umpire of the confidential sort, and gave his decisions in molulated, tones that only the batter could hear. His decisions were all impartial, and he made a good and graceful umpire. There were frequent visits to Frank Ward's can of milk, which was an honored object in the infield, and much good nature prevailed. The score by innings was as follows:
